Description:

HUD is the federal agency that is responsible for national policy and programs that address Americans' housing and improve and develop the nation's communities. HUD enforces all federal fair housing laws. In the case of public housing assistance payments on behalf of families, HUD pays housing authorities for administering the Certificate/Voucher Program, monitors the housing authority's compliance with federal regulation, and provides technical assistance. In the case of privately-owned affordable housing, HUD makes housing assistance payments on behalf of families to owners, monitors their compliance with federal regulations, and provides technical assistance to ensure that the buildings are properly maintained.
