Description:

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Administration on Aging, developed this website to provide information and resources to help you and your family plan for future long-term care (LTC) needs. The site will help you understand what long-term care is, how and where you can get information and services you need -- now or in the future, and how to pay for services.

The Web site is divided into three sections: Understanding LTC options, planning for LTC, and paying for LTC.
